

Trilium Demo

Welcome to Trilium Notes!

This is a "demo" document packaged with Trilium to showcase some of its features and also give you some ideas on how you might structure your notes. You can play with it, and modify the note content and tree structure as you wish.

If you need any help, visit triliumnotes.org or our GitHub repository.

Cleanup

Once you're finished with experimenting and want to cleanup these pages, you can simply delete them all.

Formatting

Trilium supports classic formatting like italic, bold, bold and italic. You can add links pointing to external pages or Formatting examples.

Some text in an image here.

Another text below it.

Lists

Ordered:

1. First Item
2. Second Item

- a. First sub-item
 - i. sub-sub-item

Unordered:

- Item
- Another item
 - Sub-item

Block quotes

Whereof one cannot speak, thereof one must be silent"

– Ludwig Wittgenstein

See also other examples like tables, checkbox lists, highlighting, code blocks, and math examples.

Organize your thoughts. Build your personal knowledge base.

Trilium is an open-source solution for note-taking and organizing a personal knowledge base. Use it locally on your desktop, or sync it with your self-hosted server to keep your notes everywhere you go.